

Urgent Care facility coming to Centre

CENTRE | A new medical facility operated by Birmingham-based MainStreet Family Urgent Care will soon open up shop in Centre, the company announced last week in a press release dated July 16.

A crew broke ground earlier this month on the new medical facility, which will be located across from the Wal-Mart Supercenter between Spring Garden Buffet and CATO women's clothing.

"We are excited and grateful for the opportunity to serve communities like Centre, Spring Garden, and Cedar Bluff," said Sam Eskildsen, CEO of MainStreet Family Urgent Care. "We consider our staff and our patients as one family, and in a time of need we help get our family members feeling better fast."

The 2,800-square-foot facility will feature multiple exam rooms, on-site lab testing and X-ray capabilities. The clinic will not only provide treatment for everyday illness but also perform a number of diagnostic, screening and minor procedures, such as suturing and foreign object removal, according to the press release.

The clinic will also offer a choice of occupational health services such as worker's compensation injuries, pre-employment drug testing and DOT testing. Also, the company plans to offer services ranging from school and sports physicals for kids to safety training and certification for employees.

The new facility will be

Customers will be able to schedule appointments through the company website or Facebook.

"Not only will the state-of-the-art clinic in Centre significantly advance the delivery of quality and efficient health care services to patients," said Medical Director, Timothy Taylor, M.D. "But we also hope the convenient services and friendly staff will make the entire ordeal of being sick or injured a much more pleasant experience."

MainStreet Family Urgent Care will host a public ceremony this fall in conjunction with the official opening.
